

Will you help us improve health care for future patients?

Your medical data

In order to provide you with the best possible care, we collect medical data about you. These data are stored in your electronic patient file.

Your biomaterial

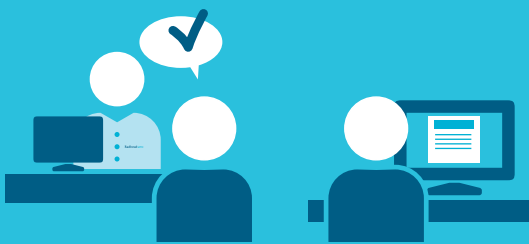

Sometimes we collect biomaterial, such as blood, urine, or tissue. This material is stored safely with us.

Research and education

- With your consent, we can use your leftover biomaterial for scientific research and education.
- This is necessary to develop new and improved treatments for future patients.

Your consent is important

- An assistant at the registration desk will ask you for your consent.
- Your answer is recorded in your electronic patient file.
- If you do not want to decide right away, you can fill in your answer later in mijnRadboud.
- If you decide to withdraw consent, you can inform any desk assistant or update your answer in mijnRadboud.
- Your choice does not affect your care plan.

Your privacy is ensured

- Your medical data and leftover biomaterial are given a secure code.
- This means researchers cannot see who it belongs to.
- Your privacy is ensured with this secure code.